Mr. Robt. Gardiner of Seal district was a visitor in town yesterday.

Under the auspices of the Ladies Aid, a concert will be given in the Methodist Church on Thursday, August 24th. Miss Edna Reed of Edmonton, has charge of the program and an exceptionally good entertainment is assured.

The government at yesterday's council had under consideration, methods of recruiting, and some changes in the system which, in the light of experience are regarded as necessary.

Details of the proposals are not yet announced but it is understood they provide for greater system in enlistment as to men who are available and those who have good reasons for staying at home; such as been engaged in industries vital to the war. It is probable that badges will be issued to those who have been rejected, or who are engaged in work benefiting the cause.

The regulations are not expected to go to a length suggestive of conscription, nor to be as all embracing as registration. At the same time there will be steps to find out more methodically those who are available. Canada has undertaken to enlist half a million men. About 365,000 have been enrolled.

It is believed that with a little more method the balance of about 130,000 men quite readily will be forthcoming.

The Navy's Triumph

In a certain sense the report issued by Vice-Admiral Brawn is a clearer testimony to the absolute ascendancy of the British Navy than the most decisive naval victory could be. Over 21,000 merchant ships have passed in the last six months through the Dover patrol. Of these, 21 in all have been lost or seriously damaged by the enemy. And even that is the lesser half of the miracle achieved. How many transports have passed, carrying how many troops, is known, as Admiral Brawn discreetly remarks, to their lordships at the Admiralty. All the public needs at the moment to know is that not a single life had been lost during their passage. This absolute failure of the German submarine in the one field in which it might legitimately have been employed with decisive military effect is one of the cardinal facts of the war.

If the party, who was seen taking the gloves out of an overcoat, Saturday night in the pool hall, does not return same at once, he will be prosecuted.

An Aluminum Nose

Remarkable Surgical Operation

A remarkable surgical operation performed recently was described by Colonel Westcott, of the 2nd Western General Hospital, Manchester, England. Speaking at a garden fete in aid of a new open-air shelter at Moorlands Red Cross Hospital, Kersal, near Manchester, the colonel said that the operation consisted of fitting up a Mr. Z. N. Irishman with an aluminum nose. The soldier had practically all of his nose torn off by a piece of shrapnel. The remnants of the nose had to be removed by operation to enable an artificial prosthesis to be used. The new nose could not be discerned on looking the wearer in the face, and only just noticed by taking a close look sideways.

The man could blow his nose and smell as well practically as if he had the original member. Once every six months the enamel colouring needed renovating, and while this was being done in London the man wore a spare replica.

The false nose was fastened to the face by a special adhesive. Once every six months the enamel colouring needed renovating, and while this was being done in London the man wore a spare replica.

"It was stated that 748 sick and wounded soldiers had been dealt with at Moorlands hospital, and not one death had occurred. One patient had 48 bullet wounds from his shoulder to his leg, caused by machine gun fire, and he had been cured.

PATRIOTIC MEETING

A public meeting will be held on Wednesday, August 23rd, in the Methodist church, for the purpose of electing officers and discussing business for the coming fiscal year. Meeting to commence at 8.15 p.m., sharp. Show your patriotism by being present.

Moses Horne, Johnson and Wright have had wells bored on their properties by Shunn Brothers.

Corp. Floyd Horne returned to Calgary Military Camp last Monday morning after spending a few days with home folks. J. B. Clemens, of Clemens, is visiting his brother, Mr. Roy Clemens.

The Cost of the War

The Vote of Credit moved by the Prime Minister yesterday in a speech limited severely to the purely financial aspect of the war represented the largest single demand ever made on the House of Commons and raised the sum so far voted for the prosecution of the war to the gigantic sum of £2,832,000,000. The previous vote of £200,000,000 has lasted just three months (with a balance of £1,000,000 still in hand), and the £2,832,000,000 now granted is expected to carry the spending departments on for a similar period. This estimate probably errs on the side of caution, for rapidly though the expenditure is increasing it has not risen by 50 per cent within six months. None the less the fact remains that, as Mr. McKenna pointed out last week, we are now actually spending at the stupendous rate of £3,000,000 a day. This figure was explained by Mr. Asquith to include what may be termed normal or non-war expenditure to the amount of £1,000,000—a sum that is, of course, vastly in excess of any demand made by a Chancellor of the Exchequer in pre-war days. The actual war expenditure is, therefore, 5,000,000 Pounds a day, and there can be no guarantee that it has reached its maximum. But it is impossible to recognize that of that amount over £1,500,000 a day represents recoverable loans to the allies and Dominions, reducing, if expectations of repayment are fully realised, the actual outlay on the war to approximately 3,500,000 Pounds daily.

Vast as the demands made on the nation are and vast as the effort they will entail must be, the achievement will not overtax our capacity. The money can be raised, and it is no more than fact to say that there is only one nation in Europe that could raise it today. Day by day, as the cost of the war grows greater, the responsibility of Great Britain as the financial corner stone of the alliance is more manifestly demonstrated. Nowhere is that more fully and more generously recognised than in France, and the French comment that speaks of yesterday's Vote of Credit as the emblem of victory is the best justification for the confidence and cheerfulness with which the nation has shouldered and will shoulder its vast financial burdens. For this at least is certain, that the money is going not merely to prosecute the war but to win the war. It was left for unofficial speakers yesterday to touch on the omens of victory that in the past weeks have been changing the face of the campaign—the Jutland battle, the heroic resistance at Verdun, General Brusiloff's brilliant strokes, the resilience of the Italians and the systematic and victorious progress on the western front. There is no place for talk of a speedy end to the campaign. The business of the government is to see to it that the material for maintaining and increasing the present pressure is constantly forthcoming. The business of the people is to stand behind the Government as one man.

HOW ORGANIZED COMMON PEOPLE OF RUSSIA BRIDGED THE DISASTER

MINDS OF MASSES LIFTED TO HIGHER VISIONS

Influence of the War on the People of Russia Has Been Far Reaching, and Never Before Have Russians Shown Such an Eagerness to do Public Service

Why German Antipathy Is Showing More Against Britain Than France or Russia

He said he was in a vision of big things.

"I can go through such an experience and remain the petty creature I am," he said. "I will not go back to his soul and his last words. I will suffer and thrust out where he left off."

"We had hard, but educators; we had a few teachers, otherwise one must be wiser."

"I am not a teacher, otherwise I would speak of the soldiers of France to the soldiers of England," he said. "I am not a teacher, otherwise I would speak of the English, the French, the German, the Austrian to the English, the French, the German, the Austrian."

His inference was that France will win the war, and that Germany will lose. So will Germany and England and France.

He said that the British will win the war, and that Germany will lose. He said that the British will win the war, and that Germany will lose. He said that the British will win the war, and that Germany will lose.

Through the All-Russian Zemstvo Union, their Central Committee, the various local zemstvo and cooperative societies and kindred organizations, they help the people to get on their feet and to work in hand, collaborating with the government in the reconstruction of the country at large and for victory.

They are not only doing this, but shown such an eagerness to do public service and never before have they been so united.

Wife—Pretty Daughter—No, and I don't care. I just know what mine are, and yours.

try on either side of the Atlantic. With recent wars, famine, and civil war, is assassinated the security of the world. It is the situation. If it be evaded to-day, the terrible penalty must be paid to-morrow. It is the situation. I attempt to dictate to neutral people, and they are not to be deterred by emergency. Let no mistake be made. Maxwell Endurance Run of 22,022.3 Miles

A Maxwell Car chosen at random from a recent shipment made this remarkable run a short time ago. This car was stopped by the Mayor of Los Angeles, so that competitors would not be discouraged and not wish to attempt a similar journey

A Woman can handle the Maxwell with ease

We will gladly demonstrate the Maxwell Car. Bring the wife along; she should have some say about the purchase of a car. She will run it, because it's easy.

OilPull Means This

FUEL at one-half the price means lower operating costs, smaller upkeep expenses and bigger profits!

Bear in mind that the OilPull is the only tractor that will successfully burn kerosene and cheaper oil fuels at all loads, under all conditions—all the time.

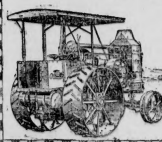

The OilPull, through deep plowing and thorough soil working, is increasing crops for a great many Dixie owners—in some cases doubling them. Barring kerosene, the OilPull adds this increase to your bank account at the lower possible cost.

A more dependable tractor than the OilPull can't be bought and you will find it able to take care of all your power jobs, whether draw-bar or belt. Two sizes, 15-30 and 30-60 horsepower.
